Class of 1967

Hall of Fame, 2011

Rex Stooksbury followed up his high school education at the University of Tennessee, earning both a bachelor's degree and master's degree in Industrial Education with additional work in curriculum and administration. He spent many years as an educator, teaching both Industrial Arts and Career Education in Knox County Schools. His career then expanded to principalships working closely with summer school and evening classes administrations as well as full-time principal for a variety of settings. He also includes Human Resources as a responsibility at the supervisory level for Knox County Schools. After retiring from the school system he served as a Knox County School Board member until 2010.

Rex has been very active in the Boys Club of Knoxville, the United Way, Kiwanis Club, the Teacher Center Representative Board, and the Powell Methodist Church. He has received a variety of awards including Principal of the Year Excellence Award in 1992, President of the local Association of Secondary School Principals, and Administrator of the Year for the Tennessee School Athletic Association.

Rex, we salute you and your life contributions!
